BOYCOTTS IN CHINA.

A REVIEW.

It is only during the present century that the Chinese have realized the efficacy of the boycott as the weapon of a militarily weak State against a stronger Power. The first movement of the kind was the boycott of 1905, directed entirely against the Americans, and having for its avowed object the coercion of the American Government into permitting the unrestricted immigration of Chinese into the United States. This boycott, which was engineered from San Francisco, started in Shanghai in May 1905, and rapidly spread to Canton, Amoy, Foochow, Hankow, Tientsin and Newchwang. Its effects were felt most seriously at Shanghai and Canton. It failed, of course, in its object, the American Government refusing then, as now, to be dictated in regard to its immigration restrictions. But it is noteworthy that (to quote Moore) "other foreign Powers, as represented both by official action and by their Press, recognized the solidarity of all foreign interests in the matter; the movement was suppressed by strong measures in Hongkong, in Tientsin, and by the Japanese in Newchwang. The Chinese Government did what it could to suppress it; the Viceroy, Yuan Shih Kai, stamped it out at Tientsin, and Governors and Taoist's issued strong proclamations in the other ports." In September, says the same authority, the boycott "faded away," because "the Chinese traders who had bought American cotton piece-goods on long-time contracts, found that they could not dispose of their holdings; and when the traders began to agitate against a trade boycott, the boycott ended."

There have been other local boycotts since 1905, but the only nation-wide movements of the kind which have proved serious have been the series of boycotts which followed the presentation of the Twenty-one Demands by Japan in 1915. Almost as soon as one anti-Japanese boycott died down another was organized, and although these boycotts have varied in intensity, they must, in the aggregate, have caused enormous losses to Japanese traders. Most Japanese now admit that the presentation of the Twenty-one Demands, followed up by the Ultimatum of May 7th, was not only unjustifiable, but was a grievous blunder. And to that extent they justify the retaliatory measures adopted by the Chinese. Boycotting Japanese goods has now become a regular pastime of the student classes, but though they from time to time succeed in arousing some little enthusiasm locally, it has ceased to be a national movement. This was a case in which it could not reasonably be argued that there was any solidarity of foreign interests. The American Government had formally warned Japan and China that it would not recognize any agreements which violated the principle of the open door. The British and other Allied Governments were preoccupied with the Great War, or they would certainly have added their protest.

Following the Shanghai incident of May 30th last an attempt was made to organize a national anti-British boycott. It was only partially successful, and has now faded away in every part of China except Kwangtung. Here it is maintained at Soviet instigation, and with the avowed intention of ruining Hongkong.

The anti-American boycott of 1905, and the anti-Japanese boycotts of 1915 onwards were directed against nations against whom the Chinese had, or fancied they had, special grievances. The anti-British boycott of to-day in South China is not a protest against any grievances, real or imaginary, for which the British can be held exclusively responsible, but has been organized by interested aliens for the avowed purpose of ruining British prestige in the Far East. Britain, whose commercial and political interests in China are still as great as, if not more important than, those of any other Power; who was mainly responsible for opening up China to foreign trade; and whose policy has consistently aimed at the enforcement of legitimate Treaty rights, and the preservation of law and order in this country, has been maliciously singled out for attack. The alleged grievances cited in justification of the boycott of Great Britain are grievances against all of the Treaty Powers. But a general anti-foreign boycott has not been declared for the simple reason that it would not pay. The traditional Chinese method is to play off one nation against another. The Strike Unions, in this case, by boycotting the British, and alone, can maintain their members in luxurious idleness by illegal levies upon other nationals, for the right to trading facilities from which the British are debarred. And there is really no reason why the boycott should not continue indefinitely as long as it is treated as a Sino-British question alone, and the Strike organization can do a lucrative business with non-British shipping and merchant firms. The anti-American boycott, of 1905, as we have already mentioned, although arising out of alleged grievances for which no other nation had the slightest responsibility, was met by a demonstration of international solidarity, the Germans, British, and Japanese adopting strong repressive measures wherever they had the power. But in the present case the other European Powers with interests in China seem quite prepared to adopt indefinitely, a policy which to all intents and purposes is one of active co-operation with the Kwangtung "Reds" and their Soviet advisers. A local and vindictive boycott of this kind is only possible when the solidarity of all foreign interests is ignored, and other nations seek temporary profit from exploiting Chinese hostility towards a friendly State. The Southern boycott would be ended within a few weeks if (Continued at foot of next column.)

THE OPIUM PROBLEM.

The opium problem, like many others, has become definitely an international problem, amenable only to organized international action. Like most problems, it concerned at one time perhaps half a dozen peoples. Again like most problems, it baffled the forces of statesmanship in the days when only a few nations were involved, and thus it spread as international relationships became more complex and more intimate, until a great many were involved. To-day, as anybody must see at once from a study of the admirable book just published by a leading American journalist ("Opium" by John Palmer Gavit, Routledge, 12s. 6d.), the only hope of putting an end to this scandal is by the machinery of the League of Nations. Mr. Gavit gives reasons for thinking that the total world production of raw opium is more than ten times the outside possible legitimate needs of the world. Ninety per cent., therefore, of this production is used for destroying health, power, mind, and character in the human race. Against an evil so flagrant as this one might imagine that there would be little difficulty in organizing the defensive powers of mankind. Unfortunately, the problem is full of complications. Several Governments derive revenue from the opium crop (our own Crown Colony in the Straits Settlements takes nearly half its revenue from this source), and they allege that until the trade is brought under control it is useless for one Government to surrender revenue with no hope of preventing illicit traffic. America, to her credit, has given the world a lead in this respect by abolishing opium smoking in the Philippine Islands at great sacrifice of revenue. Then, again, there is the difficulty created by disorder. In 1907 the British Government made an offer to China under which the export of Indian opium to China was to cease in ten years, the Chinese Government for its part undertaking to diminish in proportion the production and consumption of opium in China. The Chinese Government responded, and Sir John Jordan told the Opium Advisory Committee in 1923 that in 1917 China was practically free from opium cultivation. Unhappily the collapse of effective government and the consequent anarchy brought back the red and white poppy in great force.

The two Conferences held last year at Geneva were disappointing partly because, as Mr. Gavit allows, the instructions given to the United States delegate were too uncompromising. But the convention adopted by the second Conference provided for the appointment by the Council of the League of Nations, with the assistance of the United States and Germany, of a Permanent Central Board with very considerable powers. This Board is to consist of eight persons, none of them holding any office which puts them in a position of dependence on their Government. This Board can collect statistics, and can use this information to put pressure on States in which there is excessive production or smuggling. We have thus the beginning of international machinery. Mr. Gavit makes the excellent suggestion that a voluntary and permanent organization should be established, unofficial in character, which should collect and publish facts, and thus help public opinion to influence this Board. Some of the leading Indian thinkers, like Tagore, petitioned the Geneva Conference to take drastic measures, and the second Conference received a remarkable appeal for help from Persia. The vested interests of one kind or another are exceedingly powerful, but there is enough goodwill in the world to overcome them if it can be made effective. — Manchester Guardian.

SHANGHAI COTTON MILL STRIKE.

ALLEGED ASSAULT BY JAPANESE FOREMAN THE CAUSE.

That the labour situation in Shanghai is still critical may be seen from the attitude last week of those employed in two mills, who went on strike.

More than 1,000 male and female employees at the Japan Cotton Spinning Co., walked out at 8.15 a.m., and at a late hour had not returned to work. The mill did not work a night shift last Friday.

Throughout the day small parties of agitators and leaders attempted to force a concerted movement, but failed. Their efforts had some effect, however, and brought about a gathering of several hundred, in the afternoon, in front of the No. 4 mill. The efficiency of the Gordon Road and Pootoo Road stations, had a quietening effect, and all serious trouble was averted, the demonstration breaking up after some persuasion.

The strikers allege an unfair assault on one of their number by a Japanese foreman.

On Thursday 79 females employed in the fine yarn room of the Dong Shing Mill, 90A, Yahtzazpoo Road, struck to force a reinstatement of three of their number who had been discharged for inefficiency. The management continued firm, however, and an hour later they returned to the machines unconditionally. — N. C. Daily News.

The strikers were not supplied with funds by the shipping and merchants of nations whose Governments are pledged to "refrain from countenancing action inimical to the security" of a friendly State. And it may be added, if it were possible—which we do not believe—for the Cantonese agitators to wring the life out of Hongkong, non-British interests would suffer but little less than our own, as a result of the ruin of a port whose position, to quote from an American official publication, "is unique and without parallel" in the world's trade. — Peking & Tientsin Times.

THE KAILAN MINES.

WHY THEY WERE CLOSED DOWN.

REAPPEARANCE OF AGITATORS.

There has been a good deal of discussion of the closing down of the Kailan Mines in the Chinese Press of late, and it is obvious that an attempt is being made to exploit this action on the part of the management for political purposes. The facts are quite simple. On economic grounds the mines should have been closed down early last month. The output was far in excess of the amount of coal which could be transported to Tientsin or Chinwangtao, and it was becoming increasingly difficult to find space to store the surplus stocks. To avoid inflicting unnecessary hardship upon the miners, and the possibility of political complications, it was decided to keep the mines working as long as possible. By the end of January, however, every available square foot of storage space was filled with coal and it was impossible to go on producing. The mines were therefore compelled to close down until some of the accumulated stocks had been disposed of. About this time a number of agitators who had previously been in Tongshan, but who had nothing to do with the mines, and who, in fact, refused work when it was offered to them, reappeared, and endeavoured to stir up trouble among the workmen. Though they conducted an agitation ostensibly designed to claim the right to work they showed a marked reluctance to accept jobs in the mines.

The closing down of the mines has led to negotiations with the local Kuomintang Commandant, General Tang Shih Tao, who has managed to arrange for the release of three locomotives, and some rolling stock, and has undertaken, if the mines resume work, to do everything in his power to facilitate the regular transportation of coal. Relying on these assurances the management of the Kailan Mining Administration has arranged for the resumption of work on the 15th inst. (to-day) but whether it will be possible to keep the mines working must depend upon the manner in which the militarists fulfil their promises. Actually, the mines will have been closed for a shorter period this year than at China New Year in 1925. —P. & T. Times.

VISITING THE OLD SCHOOL.

How your heart beats, and how, in spite of yourself, a feeling of guilt creeps over you, as you walk up the wide stone staircase to the entrance hall; for in the old days it was sacred to parents and masters.

The duty call to the "head" having been paid—he was polite, but showed unmistakably that he was busy—you catch your breath at the thought of visiting your favourite form master; for not only was he your favourite, but you were his.

Timidly you tap upon his door, and the well-remembered voice bids you enter. A stir runs round the boys at their desks. You smile to yourself. The visit of an old boy was always a joyous event; it kept the master occupied and interrupted the lesson.

"Er—He is clearly puzzled. You had forgotten that you have altered during those 12 years."

"Jones, you know, E. H. Jones," you explain. "Ah! Of course. How are you, Jones? I'm delighted to see you again. And what do you think of the old place?"

You say that it is little changed, and just prevent yourself in time from adding "sair." The war memorial is fine, though. Whoever would have thought that "Fatty" Johnson would have won the M.C. or poor old Smith gone under in the way he did.

The boys at their desks are giggling and the master looks across sternly. He seems to be lost for further conversation. At last he says brightly: "Hm! I expect your name is carved on more than one of those desks."

You stare at him in amazement. You—the paragon boy—the boy who was never kept in or caned—you, to be accused of the most heinous of all form crimes!

Then, like the sudden touch of a cold hand, the numbing realization chills you. He has completely forgotten you! —F. McDermott in the Daily Express.

A DUTIFUL WIFE.

A woman, charged with being drunk at Lambeth Police Court, last month, said that the cause of her trouble was that her husband came home with a bottle of whisky. "Honestly and truly," she said, "I took half of the bottle to prevent him from drinking it because I know what he is like when he gets hold of whisky."

She was fined 5s.

Derby Day 1925 will long be remembered by the racing fraternity as having furnished one of the most exciting finishes that one could well wish to see, which resulted in the victory of Glorious Dahlia by half a length from Pretty Polly.

The winner is owned by Sir Paul Chater, the President of the Hongkong Jockey Club, who this year attended his sixty-first consecutive annual race meeting.

Horse, owner, jockey and trainer received a tremendous reception on returning to scale, the victory of Glorious Dahlia having to a large extent compensated for the bad luck which has dogged the Chater colours for the past two seasons.

Though there had been a few showers during the early hours yesterday, the weather cleared up before racing started and the rain held off until the day's sport was concluded.

There was a far larger gathering present than on the opening day, and the takings at the totalisator and cash sweeps were quite up to an average Derby day.

His Excellency the Governor (Sir Cecil Clementi, K.C.M.G.) and party were present during the afternoon and remained till after the last race.

To-day the chief events, beside the Champions, are the Governor's Cup (race
3) and the Ladies' Purse (race 4).

Miss Birkett will present the "Purse" to the rider of the winner of the last-named event, who following the usual custom will take her in to tiffin.

THE RACING.

[BY ASSOCI.]

Racing commenced yesterday with the Canseway Bay Stakes for which Saligia carried no less than 570 tickets out of 693. Five other ponies were sent to the post, but Messrs. Hall and Shenton's chestnut gelding made them look like hacks.

For the Exchange Plate four ponies went to the post. Sunbeam Dahlia (Mr.
McBain) and Grey Morn (Lt.-Cdr.
Thompson) being in equal demand. A great struggle down the straight resulted in Sir Paul's nomination winning by a neck.

For the Derby six ponies were added the investments on the Totalisators being as follows:—

	Win.	Place
Pretty Polly	819	387
King of Troy	103	254
Lady Love	55	158
Saucy Sue	317	374
Glorious Dahlia	580	710
Total Absence	139	225
	2,006	2,078

The ponies kept well together until reaching the stands, when Glorious Dahlia moved clear of the field. Pretty Polly was immediately sent up alongside the leaders, and took the lead at the foot of the hill. Pretty Polly appeared to be a clear two lengths ahead, on turning for home and at the distance post seemed to have the race at her mercy.

At this juncture, however, Glorious Dahlia, came with a great rush and a ding-dong struggle ensued. The mare answered to the call gamely, but her absence from work doubtless told on her and Sir Paul's pony gradually wore her down to win by a bare half length. It was a great struggle and honours between the first two ponies and their riders must be "equally divided," when one takes into consideration the happenings of the last six weeks.

The last race before tiffin was the Challenge Cup for subscription griffins.

Messrs. Dyer and Beith having decided to run Total Absence in the Derby,
the Cup looked a good thing for Dobbin, after Golden Pheasant's poor performance the first day. Yesterday, however, Lady Chater's pony put up a much better performance and Mr. Haimovitch, on Dobbin, had little to spare at the finish.

After tiffin, punters received the first real setback when Mr. Ralph steered Bundoran to victory in the race for the Jockey Cup, returning his supporters a dividend of $34.30 and crediting Mr. J.
H. Taggart with his first victory at the meeting.

In the Southern Stakes, Mr. McBain gained another success for the Chater stables, when he rode Sunrise Dahlia to victory.

For the Lusitano Cup, Lady Love was made a hot favourite, but could get no nearer than third, doubtless feeling the effect of a hard race on Monday and her outing in the Derby earlier yesterday.
The winner paid $18.40.

In the race for the Challenge Cup,
Local Option was only opposed by Tacoma and Duke of Frisco, and won by almost a distance.

The Royal Naval Cup attracted a field of fourteen, of which Loch Rannoch was a firm favourite. Despite a 7 lbs. penalty, however, Home Call won comfortably, in the hands of Mr. Maitland, with the favourite, 5½ lengths away, third.

The Black Rock Stakes provided another capital struggle, the Judges being unable to separate Fantastic Dahlia and Brigade Call.

The last event of the day saw Wim-mura, ridden by Mr. Dallas, show a clean pair of heels to Rothesay and six others. Now that this pony has at long last broken the ice, it is quite on the cards that he will further compensate his owners for the loss suffered over Prince Regent.

HONGKONG, MARCH 3rd, 1926.

THE GREAT ELECTRIFICATION SCHEME IN BRITAIN.

The Conservative Government's scheme for providing the British nation with a cheap and efficient electrical power supply is businesslike. It takes full account of the basic facts concerned in the proposal and embodies the lesson of experience.

It is easy to devise grandiose projects which rest on the clouds and have no adaptation to the workaday requirements of the business world; and it is also easy to formulate plans which are advertised as suited to bring half a dozen big industries into collaboration to the great advantage of producers, consumers, and everybody else but are really designed for electioneering effect. So far as we can see there are in this scheme no promises of 'magical transformations under State control, and there is no intention to put the electrical supply of the country under a Civil Service Department. The full details are not available as yet; but the broad outline of what is proposed was sketched by the Prime Minister in his speech at Birmingham on January 15th, and this gives us sound reasons for believing that the ultimate result will be the cheapening and improvement of power supply that will benefit Great Britain as a producing country.

There are some points which are not quite clear, and we note that in the home papers, while comment is favourable even friendly commentators are careful to qualify what they write by pointing out that at the present stage the scheme cannot be definitely judged. Details are required. But certain facts emerge.

Under the new proposals there will be no interference with the various private companies and municipalities which distribute electricity to the public, except in one respect—that standardisation will gradually be enforced. As things are electricity is generated of no fewer than sixteen or seventeen different frequencies (frequency being the number of waves of electricity generated per second). The hundreds of small generating stations to be found scattered about Britain have followed various tastes and theories in their choice of varying frequencies. But if one frequency is enforced, then two results immediately follow. One is that every district can be supplied by a few large stations linked up by a system of power cables. The other is that the manufacturer, instead of having to make seventeen different kinds of plant in small quantities, can go in for mass production.

Therefore, the argument is that standardisation would not only cheapen current but would also stimulate the British manufacture of electrical machinery.

The Government's plan is to set up a board of practical business men with the necessary authority to construct interconnecting power lines—over-head cables carrying current—and to co-ordinate all present or future power stations. Power economically generated at the big station will be sold to the small stations in a given area acting as distributing agencies at a price far below that at which they could produce it themselves. As a result the cost of production in industry would be cheapened. As Mr. BALDWIN pointed out, in Great Britain 300 electrical units a year are used per head of the population. In the United States the corresponding figure is 500 units. In Canada it is 900 units. Moreover there is a great and almost absurd disparity in the working cost per unit of electric power in different areas. This varies, according to the last complete figures available, from .44 of a penny to 10d. and 11d., and the amount of coal used to generate one unit varies from 1.8lb. to 10lb. and over.

Shortly after the war a strong Commission was appointed under the chairmanship of Sir ARCHIBALD WILLIAMSON, now Lord Forster, to examine the whole question. One of their principal recommendations was that the country should be divided into suitable areas, and that the whole business of generation in each of these areas should be undertaken by a single authority created for the purpose. Something was done by ensuing legislation. The Coalition Government appointed a body of Electrical Commissioners, whose duty it was to settle the right areas and consider the proper formation of the joint authorities. The Commissioners have in fact mapped out the country into the areas contemplated by the parent Commission, and have instituted certain authorities, but the difficulties in their way have made it necessary for the Government to re-examine the position and proceed by way of the legislation that is to be introduced in the present session of Parliament.

The Government's plan has this recommendation that it follows a method which has proved successful under the test of experience. The policy adopted is that which is exemplified in the formation of the Mersey Docks and Harbour Board, the Chief Electrical Power Board will be composed of practical men closely in touch with the industry. It will raise its own capital and work on ordinary commercial lines. Any surplus revenue it obtains after earning interest on the capital it employs and the necessary further sum for the sinking fund will be used to reduce charges to consumers. It is not expected that the Board will require a subsidy from the Exchequer, but it will have the advantage of a Government guarantee such as has been made available under the Trade Facilities Act.

There is to be no precipitate change for the sake of change and no unnecessary State interference.

"The larger stations will continue, I trust," said Mr. BALDWIN, "to be operated by their present owners or by companies or municipalities that may build others in the future, but they will work together under the Board for the production of a common supply of electricity, which the Board will purchase and make available to all the distributors." No one must expect miracles from the new scheme. It will not transform industrial conditions in Great Britain. But it will, on the general outlines so far disclosed, improve conditions. Instead of some 500 generating stations as at present there will be 80 at work, and these will be placed where coal is at hand. It is a good scheme on paper, and we shall await with the greatest possible interest the disclosure of further details in Parliament.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS.
ANXIETY FELT IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.

LONDON, March 1st.

In the House of Commons, the Marquess of Hartington asked whether communications had been received from the Dominions expressing their views on the proposed increase in the permanent membership of the League Council.

Mr. Amery referred to Sir Austen Chamberlain's reply of February 17th and added it was impossible to make a statement on the nature of such communications which were of a confidential character.

Mr. J. H. Thomas requested that the correspondence should be submitted before any debate, but Mr. Amery was not sure he would be able to do so and said it would largely depend on the views of the Governments concerned.

Mr. Thomas asked if it was not essential for the House to know exactly the Dominion viewpoint before a debate, but he was given no reply.

The anxiety of Members of the House of Commons on the League Council issue is reflected by questions, three by Liberals and one by a Conservative asking whether a decision has been reached as regards instructions to Sir Austen Chamberlain at Geneva and whether the Dominions will be consulted before Britain is committed to any change.

Mr. Baldwin, in a joint reply, requested the House to wait the statement he hoped to make later in the week probably on Thursday.

Mr. Ramsay MacDonald requested a statement on Wednesday, and the Premier promised to do his best.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

Addressing the League of Nations Parliamentary Committee, which recently unanimously passed a resolution urging the Government strenuously to oppose the proposal to make any fundamental changes in the constitution of the Council of the League, Sir Austen Chamberlain reiterated that the Government had not yet decided on its course of action. He declared there was a real case for consideration of the composition of the Council. The demand that the practice of re-electing non-permanent members year after year should be abandoned was growing. He was immovably opposed to the suggestion that any State should be brought on the Council as a counterpoise to Germany, but there was sound argument for increasing the permanent membership, since, under the Locarno agreement, possibly Germany and all the present permanent members, except Japan, would be regarded as interested parties and therefore unable to vote in dispute under the Locarno Treaty were submitted to the Council.

Continuing, Sir Austen said the question of how could the Council be made most effective for the maintenance of peace and conciliation, and not any counting of votes in a body where, unless there was unanimity, there could be no decision. Sir Austen contended that if in great questions, the British representatives were required to define their attitude unequivocally beforehand, the delegates of other Governments would be forced into the same position and paralysis would result, owing to one State vetoing one solution and another State vetoing another solution. The only way to keep the door open to conciliatory negotiation was to avoid irrevocable commitments on the part of any delegate in advance. He hoped that complete harmony might be achieved through preliminary conversations, in the Locarno manner, with the German delegates at Geneva. A variety of possible solutions suggested themselves, and all he was not to be expected to go to Geneva with his hands tied.

THE LEAGUE COUNCIL'S AGENDA.

RUGBY, March 1st.

In the House of Commons to-day the attention of Sir Austen Chamberlain, the Foreign Secretary, was called to the fact that the agenda of the League Council has been arranged so that the question of the Saar Commission will be brought up first, before Germany has been admitted to the League. Sir Austen Chamberlain was asked whether, the Government would endeavour to secure that the matter, so closely concerning German interests, should be postponed until Germany can be represented.

Sir Austen Chamberlain replied that it was the usual practice of the Council to decide matters relating to its procedure, and he had been unable to anticipate the Council's decision on this occasion. As to obtaining a postponement of the Saar question, he did not think that the interests of peace and international understanding were served by members of individual Governments saying what they would or would not do at the meeting of that great world council—the Council of the League—and he did not see how an agreed decision could ever be reached if any Government announced its policy beforehand and was unwilling to make concessions.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

BRITISH PRESS OPPOSITION.

LONDON, March 2nd.

Sir Austen Chamberlain's speech yesterday has led to a lively renewal of Press criticism against the reconstruction of the League Council at the forthcoming meeting, other than the admission of Germany.

The Manchester Guardian says the British Government, unfortunately, seems to be almost the only Government whose policy cannot be predicted with precision, and suggests the Government are divided on the question, and declares that the demand that Sir Austen Chamberlain be allowed to go to Geneva without guidance or instructions is horrifying.

The Daily Chronicle asks if the Foreign Secretary personally committed himself to support the French scheme of "packing" the Council against Germany.

The Westminster Gazette, which comments on the secrecy attending yesterday's meeting, and mentions that the few members who disagreed with Sir Austen Chamberlain's plea that the proceedings should be private and confidential say his statement was received coldly, and created a bad impression. The same paper adds he clearly indicated he favoured a larger Council, and conveyed the impression that he favoured the claims of Spain and Poland to enter simultaneously with Germany.

The Daily Express likewise comments on the meeting's cold reception of Sir Austen's expressed desire to go to Geneva, with "all doors left open."

The Daily Telegraph says the opposition which is raised here is on grounds wholly unrelated to our domestic politics, and is equally free of all suspicious bias in the international sphere. The question is whether the serious crisis in the affairs of the League and progress of the policy of European appeasement initiated at Locarno shall be avoided, and we are entitled to assume a force of consideration which we do emphasise, has been taken into account by the Government, and we are confident as regards the nature of their decision.

The Daily News accuses Sir Austen for still championing a proposal in the teeth of almost the unanimous opinion of Britain which does not effect Locarno, by quite needless exasperation of the very feelings which Locarno soothed.

WAR CEMETERIES.

COMMONS VOTE £48,700 FOR THEIR MAINTENANCE.

RUGBY, March 1st.

Mr. Ronald McNeill, Financial Secretary to the Treasury, in moving in the House of Commons, a vote of £48,700 for the salaries and expenses of the Imperial War Graves Commission, explained that last summer all the Governments of the British Empire, including that of British India, agreed to accumulate a fund which should reach a capital sum of £50,000,000 sufficient to maintain British war cemeteries in different parts of the world in the manner that the nation desired they should be maintained. It was proposed that this capital sum should be £50,000,000 and it was estimated that the annual sum necessary would be from £200,000 to £250,000. It was in order to provide England's first contribution that the Government asked the House to vote £50,000, less some small savings, for the purpose this year and to vote the same sum for the next two years. It was hoped that at the end of 15 years, by the accumulation of interest on these grants and with contributions which would come from the Dominion Governments, the sum of £50,000,000 would be obtained. The vote was adopted.

INTERNATIONAL MATCH.

ENGLAND DEFEATED BY WALES.

LONDON, March 1st.

Playing at Selhurst in dull weather and before 20,000 spectators, Wales beat England at "Soccer," by three goals to one.

Play in the first half was rather loose, neither side showing effective combination. Both had several narrow escapes. Three minutes from the interval, Fowler scored with a fast left-foot shot from Cresswell's centre, the half-time score being Wales 1; England 0. After twelve minutes from the re-start Urwin placed the ball nicely for Walker to head through for England, but directly afterwards W. Davies scored with a long left-foot shot for Wales. The third goal for Wales came after seventeen minutes, Fowler netting with Pym out of goal. For a long time the Welshmen were penned in their own quarters but the Englishmen, although making determined efforts, finished their attacks badly.

POLICE OFFICERS' RETIRE, THREE LEAVING FOR HOME.

Three officers of the Hongkong Police Force are about to retire after many years service in this Colony. They are Divisional Inspector R. Lanigan, now at Central Police Headquarters; Sub-inspector A. J. Moody, of the Kowloon-Water Police, and Divisional Inspector T. Cashman, in charge of the Water Police Station.

Inspectors Lanigan and Moody leave on Saturday on the P. & O. s.s. Mantua, but Inspector Cashman does not bid farewell to the Force until the following Saturday, March 13th, when he sails on the P. & O. s.s. Kashmir.

INSPECTOR LANIGAN.

Divisional Inspector Robert Lanigan, a native of Kilkenny, has completed 21 years' service. He joined the Force in 1905, being recruited as a constable in London in that year. He has served at various stations on the Colony, and like practically all local police officers has met with the rough and the smooth in the course of his duties, encountering the various experiences that fall to the lot of the majority, especially in connection with raids and armed robberies.

He was made a Lance-Sergeant in 1910 and was promoted full Sergeant in 1914, attaining the rank of Sub-Inspector in 1920, and that of Inspector in 1923. He was made Divisional Inspector, Central, during the strike in June last year, being at that time engaged in charge-room duty at the Station.

Previous to going on leave in 1920, he had served nine years in the Water Police without a break, and on returning from that leave he took charge of Shaukiwan until 1924, when he was transferred to Sham Shui Po, where he remained for about a year, being then appointed in charge of Yaumati Station. After more than a year's service there, he was transferred to Central, where he has remained.

Inspector Lanigan is going on retirement, it is quite possible, and indeed, very probable that he will return to the Force. He is going away with the option of staying within a certain period, whether he wishes to retire or resume his career in the Hongkong Force, and if he decides to return at the expiration of ten months' leave, he shall be seeing him again, in a little less than a year. At present he has not made up his mind as to the course he will take, and is going to see how he likes things at home before finally deciding the matter.

INSPECTOR MOODY.

Sub-Inspector A. J. Moody has had an interesting career. First he saw seven years' service with the Grenadier Guards, and fought in the South African War; and has now completed 19 years' service in the Hongkong Police.

A native of Dartford, Kent, he joined the Guards when a youth of sixteen years, and was stationed in London, and also at the Guards' camps at Caterham, Pirbright, and Aldershot. From the last mentioned place he went with his battalion to Gibraltar, and being transferred to another battalion, he proceeded to the Boer War and went through the campaign. After the war he returned to England and served for a further period before leaving the Army.

He later joined the Hongkong Police, with whom he has now completed 19 years' service. For the past 11 years he has been in the Water Police. He had previously served at Shaukiwan, West Point and other stations.

Inspector Moody was on duty in the Strand at the time of the late Queen Victoria's Diamond Jubilee celebration, and recalls seeing the Hongkong Police contingent, consisting of a number of Indian constables, Chinese lukong and European police officers. The Chinese were then wearing the old bamboo hats. Inspector Moody was also one of those that took part in the great review of troops by the late Queen Victoria on Laffin's Plain, Aldershot, probably one of the biggest and most spectacular reviews ever held here.

Inspector Moody's desire in his retirement is to settle down somewhere in Surrey preferably in a place like Pirbright, where he spent much of his time while in the Guards, but in any case within easy and quick reach of London and the Oval and Lords. Inspector Moody's interest is largely centred in first class cricket, and he is looking forward to seeing the test matches between Australia and England.

INSPECTOR CASHMAN.

Divisional Inspector T. Cashman, who does not leave Hongkong until March 13th, has completed about 28 years' service in the Hongkong Police Force.

He was recruited at the L.R.C. Depot, Dublin, by the late Mr. Badeley, formerly C.S.P., Hongkong Police, (then D.S.P.) and sailed from England for Hongkong in September 1893, arriving on October 30th on the s.s. Glentworth, one of the original vessels of the Glen Line.

Inspector Cashman's promotions followed in due course and he has held his present rank for the past three years. He has been stationed at practically every station.

THE BOYCOTT.

EXAMINATION OF CARGO BY THE BOYCOTTERS' ORGANISATION.

[FROM OUR CHINESE CORRESPONDENT.]

The Canton Strike Committee enforcing the "anti-imperialist" boycott has formally accepted the "advice" of the chairman of the Political Commission of the Kuomintang not to interfere with the Customs Administration by issuing an order to all pickets to this effect.

The Canton pickets, as a means of restoring "face" recently lost through being told to cease seizing goods before Customs inspection, are now persisting that all imports, coastal as well as foreign, must be re-examined in order to detect cargo of British origin, notwithstanding the opinion of the Chinese merchants that native products such as beans and tea coming from another Chinese port should be passed as a matter of course.

The nuisance this caused by the unreasonable action of the pickets is costing the merchants some seven dollars a ton extra for cooie charges for transferring cargo from the Customs Examination Shed to the Strike Committee's "Prize Court" near Shameen.

The members of the "Prize Court," which is constituted equally of workers and merchants, are finding they cannot amicably work together, and opinion is divided neither side willing to submit to the other. Frequent splits of this kind in the "Court" have led to quite a number of consignments being held up.

A report in the Chung Hwa Min Pao yesterday stated that informal negotiations between interested Canton and Hongkong parties for the settlement of the difficulty had been renewed and that, as soon as some preliminary agreements could be concluded, a formal conference would be held, perhaps, according to this journal, at Macao or at some other place outside Canton and Hongkong.

In the meantime, it appears that the Strike Committee is as active as ever. To further intensify things, it has decided to limit its issue of permits for Chinese to go from Canton to Hongkong.

THE LATE PROFESSOR E. H. PARKER.

Professor Edward Harper Parker, Professor of Chinese in Manchester University, and Reader in Chinese in Liverpool University, at the age of 77, died at his residence in Liverpool on January 21st, of pneumonia after four days' illness.

The second son of Edward Parker, surgeon, of Kirkdale, Liverpool, he was born on January 3rd, 1849, and was sent to Dr. Brunner's preparatory school at Everton and to the Royal Institution at Liverpool. On leaving school he made a start in business, in the cotton-broking, tea, and silk trades, but after about two years of this he decided to enter the Consular Service. He studied Chinese under Dr. J. Summers in George-yard, E.C., and having passed an examination was appointed a student interpreter in China in 1869, and served in Peking, Tientsin, Taku, Hankow, Kiating, and Fuchuan. He obtained a scholarship at the Middle Temple, and studied there from 1875 to 1877. Afterwards he served at Pagoda Island and other places, and rose to be a first class assistant in 1880. He was called to the Bar in 1882, and was acting Vice-Consul at Chemulpo, Korea, and then Acting Consul-General in Korea in 1886 and 1887. Service at Pagoda Island again followed, and he was promoted to be Consul at Kiangchow in April, 1891. From March, 1892, to June, 1893, he was employed in Burma as adviser to the Indian Government on Chinese affairs, and he retired on a pension in September, 1895.

Professor Parker wrote a number of works on Chinese life and religion. His "Comparative Chinese Family Law" appeared in 1870. "The Opium War" in 1877, "China's Relations with Foreigners" in 1883, "Up the Yangtze" in 1882, "Burma" in 1893, and "A Thousand Years of Tartars" in 1895 (enlarged edition, 1925). In 1898 he was appointed Reader in Chinese in University College, Liverpool, now Liverpool University, and in 1901, the year in which he published his "China," of which an enlarged edition appeared in 1917, he was appointed Professor of Chinese in Owens College, Manchester, now Manchester University. He published "John Chinaman" also in 1901, "China, Past and Present" in 1903, "China and Religion" in 1906, "Ancient China Simplified" in 1908, and "Studies in Chinese Religion" in 1910.

He has watched with much interest the development of Hongkong and specially Kowloon, the latter place being nothing like it is now when he first came out here. Haiphong Street twenty-five years ago was then Elgin Street, and there was no such place or any suggestion of Nathan Road.

On reaching home, Inspector and Mrs. Cashman, with their four children, intend to settle down in Cork. All Inspector Cashman's children were born in Hongkong.

OTHER DEPARTURES.

Also sailing on the Zantua on Saturday is Mr. P. P. J. Wodehouse, C.I.E., and Mrs. Wodehouse. Mr. Wodehouse is going on long leave.

Others departing by the same vessel on leave from the Police include, Inspector Robert Richard Lanigan (brother of Divisional Inspector Lanigan), who is also stationed at Central; Sergeant Bright of Central, and Sergeant Stewart of the Water Police.

Servant R. Dungey, of Central, is going home on retirement after about 24 years' service in the Force.

The China Fleet boxing tournament was continued at the Murray Barracks last night. The bouts were of a higher standard than on the previous night.

The finals in all classes are to be contested to-night commencing at 8.30 p.m. Some good fights should be seen.

CHAMPIONSHIPS.

BANTAMWEIGHTS.

L.S. Hanson, Vindictive, 115 lbs., v. A.B. Workman, Durban, 113 lbs. The fighting was somewhat mediocre, and occasionally the men wrestled. In the first round Hanson was the aggressor, but Workman often led in the second. Both men fought hard in the third. Hanson was adjudged the winner.

LIGHTWEIGHTS.

Sto. Dore, 130 lbs., L2, v. A.B. Coster, 127 lbs., Hawkins. Coster was knocked out in the second round.

A.B. Quick, 130 lbs., Hawkins, v. L.Sto. Everett, Robin. After a good three rounds, Everett was given the decision.

WELTERWEIGHTS.

Sto. Reynolds, 145 lbs., L3, v. L.S. Derbyshire, 145 lbs., Vindictive. There was not a tame moment in the three rounds. Reynolds was given the decision.

Ingir. Jones, R.M., Vindictive, 144 lbs., v. P.O. Meen, 144 lbs., L3. Meen won on points.

LIGHT-HEAVYWEIGHT.

L.Sto. Whittell, 171 lbs., Durban, v. L.Sto. Pelling, 184 lbs., Jawkins. Pelling was knocked out in the first round.

OFFICERS.

HEAVYWEIGHTS.

Pay-Sub-Lieut. Nixon, Vindictive, 168 lbs., v. Mid. Kinlock, Despatch, 168 lbs. Nixon did all the leading in the first round. Kinlock was very weak in defence. The fight was rather crude, neither man showing much knowledge of the art, but of the two Nixon was easily superior. In the second round he got home three nice lefts, and attacked continuously. After a very poor third Nixon was adjudged the winner, and so won the final.

WELTERWEIGHTS.

Sub-Lt. Andrew, Vindictive, 147 lbs., v. Mid. Rowe, Hawkins, 142 lbs. Both men went at it "hammer and tongs" in the first round, with Andrew superior. Rowe was, however, very tenacious. Rowe was not behind in leading and hitting in the second round. He attacked in the early part of the third round, but both men tired as the round finished. Neither man possessed a hard punch, but throughout, they fought gamely. Andrew won narrowly.

NOVICES.

FEATHERWEIGHTS.

A.B. Appleton, 124 lbs., Iroquois, v. A.B. Rowe, 125 lbs., Vindictive. A poor first round saw hardly a good blow landed. A few straight lefts and an occasional right swing with no power behind them was all that occurred in the second round. Both men got home some decent blows in the last round. Rowe was given the decision.

Boy Turner, Vindictive, 124 lbs., v. Sig. Bennett, 121 lbs., Vindictive, 121 lbs. What attacking there was was done by Turner, but for the most part the men kept from each other. Bennett put up a particularly poor show. Turner won.

LIGHTWEIGHTS.

A.B. Broadhurst, Vindictive, 133 lbs., v. O.D. De Jay, Durban, 130 lbs. A good first round saw both men slashing home hard and often with both hands. Broadhurst seemed to have the heavier punch. De Jay attacked vigorously in the second round, and had the better of the heavy exchanges. The last round was a fierce one. De Jay kept up his aggressiveness and was very sure. He won a good fight.

Sto. Miles, 130 lbs., Ambrose, v. A.B. Quick, 130 lbs., Hawkins. Miles retired at the first round, owing to having his right eye cut.

WELTERWEIGHT.

Sig. Syner, 139 lbs., Tamar, v. Sto. Perkins, 141 lbs., Vindictive. Although he was somewhat erratic, Perkins lashed out with both hands in the first round. He continued his aggressive tactics in the second round, but he failed to tire his man. Syner fared better as the round ended. The third round was very tame. Perkins won.

MIDDLEWEIGHTS.

Sto. Roberts, 153 lbs., Vindictive, v. A.B. Sanders, 152 lbs., Hollyhock. This was a very mediocre fight. Neither man seemed to know much about the game. Sanders won.

Sto. Cook, 159 lbs., Vindictive, v. Sig. Marshall, 154 lbs., Hawkins. Both men mixed matters freely in the first round, with Marshall surer. Clinching prevailed in the second round. Marshall continued his superiority in the third round, and won the fight.

LIGHT HEAVIES.

A.B. Buckmaster, 164 lbs., Hawkins, v. Boy Yates, 173 lbs., Despatch. There was scarcely a blow struck in the first round. There was a slight improvement in the second. Buckmaster getting home some decent blows. Buckmaster was also superior in the last round and won.

CRICKET.

VOLUNTEERS BEAT THE NAVY.

GOOD BATTING AND BOWLING SEEN.

On the Hongkong Cricket Club ground yesterday afternoon, the Hongkong Volunteer Defence Corps wiped out their defeat of the previous day by the Army, by defeating the Royal Navy by 121 runs.

A feature of the match was the excellent batting displays given by Owen Hughes and Fincher (Volunteers) and Lieut. Halsey (Navy), while Pay-Lieut. Woodward (Navy) and Sayer (Volunteers) were responsible for some very fine bowling.

Battling first, the Volunteers knocked up the telling score of 237 runs, but it was significant that they obtained this total in the earlier stages of their innings, for the last five wickets fell with only 34 runs being scored; while the last three wickets did not produce a single run. This was due to the magnificent bowling of Pay-Comdr. Woodward who took them and whose analysis showed five wickets for fifteen runs. Woodward was unlucky in missing the hat trick twice. He took two wickets, missed one ball and then took two more in succession and missed again, but it is interesting to record that the last two he captured were at the cost of five runs only.

The contribution of 33 runs by Owen Hughes, 56 runs by Fincher, 39 runs by Loyal and 31 by Mitchell told in the score of the Volunteers. In compiling his score, Owen Hughes hit two sixes and seven fours; while Fincher's score included six sixes.

Replying with 116 runs, the Navy owed the fact of passing the century mark to Lieut. Halsey, but for whose contribution of 73 runs they would have been defeated by a much larger margin than they were. Lieut. Halsey's score included three sixes and eleven fours.

Bowling honours in this innings went to Sayer, who took four wickets for 33 runs, and with the exception of Woodward, he came out with the best analysis.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.

A very refreshing and highly entertaining picture was screened at the Queen's Theatre yesterday in "A Noise in the Bush," which stars Viola Dana. It will be shown at the Queen's from to-morrow until Sunday; while another feature of the programme will be the performances of Amio Maynard and her Royal Hawaiians.

OPIUM CASES.

HEAVY FINE FOR POSSESSION OF ILLICIT DRUG.

At the Central Magistracy yesterday, a Chinese was charged before Mr. R. E. Lindell, with being in possession of Macao opium, which is illicit according to the local Ordinance governing the possession and smoking of this drug.

For the defence Mr. McCallum, in advancing extenuating circumstances, pointed out that one could be a customer of the Government by smoking its high grade opium. Mr. McCallum stated that the defendant had smoked Government opium for the last twenty years, being further well-known to the Revenue department, and kept a purchase book in which his large requirements of Government opium were duly recorded. As regarded the illicit opium complained of, said Mr. McCallum, it was left behind by friends who had come from Macao to spend the New Year with the defendant. The plea he entered on defendant's behalf was that of technical possession only.

Senior Revenue Officer G. Watt said that it was always difficult for the department to get information of the presence of this illicit opium.

His Worship remarked that there was always the temptation to smuggle in Macao opium, owing to the latter product being cheaper.

Mr. Lindell imposed a fine of $500.

CHAUFFEUR IN TROUBLE.

Following knocking down and seriously injuring a small boy, a Chinese chauffeur found himself facing further trouble yesterday at the Central Magistracy when he was charged before Mr. Lindell in connection with some opium alleged to have been in his possession.

It appears that a Chinese detective who was called out in connection with this accident, which took place at Quarry Point, searched the driver, without any definite object in view, but his search resulted, it is alleged, in the discovery of a package containing illicit opium. It was further stated that the driver pressed the detective to accept the opium as an inducement not to make any further fuss.

The injured boy, who received a fracture of the leg, was taken to hospital for treatment and has since been discharged, but with a view of obtaining his evidence, which is considered by Inspector Field to be that of an impartial witness, His Worship remanded the case.

EXPECTORATING IN COURT.
CHINESE CALLED TO BOOK.

During the hearing of a number of cases at the Central Magistracy yesterday concerning unlicensed hawkers, Mr. Lindell had to break off the proceedings for a moment to call to book a Chinese who had been indulging in the disgusting habit of expectorating.

The man had expectorated in a rather noisy manner, but when called before His Worship did not seem to comprehend the reason. He appeared to think that that it was his case of hawking on the race-course without a licence, that was being dealt with by His Worship.

However, he received a surprise at the close, when Mr. Lindell fined him $7 ($2 being in respect of the conviction for unlicensed hawking). His Worship in imposing the penalty, mentioned that the $5 fine was for the disgusting behaviour of spitting in Court before a Magistrate. In default of payment, the defendant would go to prison for ten days.

MOTOR ACCIDENTS.

SEVERAL MISHAPS REPORTED.

Several people were involved in motor-car accidents on Monday, according to the Traffic Department.

In one instance a Chinese woman was knocked down by a motor-car in Queen's Road East, near the Wanchai Post Office, and she was taken to the Government Civil Hospital suffering from injuries to her left foot.

In another case a Chinese boy, aged ten years, was knocked down by a car which was being taken out of a garage in Matheson Street, the boy receiving injuries to his leg necessitating treatment at the French Hospital, Causeway Bay.

A Chinese boy, aged fifteen years, was also admitted to the Government Civil Hospital, as a result of being knocked down at Quarry Point.

While a coolie was pulling his rickshaw to the Star Ferry, a motor-car ran into the back of the rickshaw inflicting damage to the extent of $20. No one was injured.

FAMOUS K.C. TO DEFEND A CHINESE.

EMPIRE-WIDE FUND RAISED.

Chinese in all parts of the British Empire, says a London paper, have subscribed to a fund for the defence of Lock Ah Tam, a Chinese shipping agent of Birkenhead, who will stand his trial at Chester Assizes, on a charge of murdering his English wife and one of his daughters.

The fund has reached such a considerable amount that it has been decided to brief Sir Edward Marshall-Hall, K.C., the famous advocate, at a "special" fee.

Chester is off Sir Edward's circuit, so that he will receive a heavy additional fee above the large amount marked on his brief.

Mr. John Grace, M.P., will appear with Sir Edward Marshall-Hall, and Sir Ellis Griffith, K.C., will lead for the Crown. It is alleged that Lock Ah Tam, who is a naturalized British subject, shot his wife and two daughters at a birthday party. One of the girls lingered in hospital for fifty-one days, dying about a week ago.

SIGNIFICANCE OF THE CANTON ISSUE.

INTERESTING VIEWS OF A PEKING JOURNAL.

The "Peking Leader" in an editorial February 23rd, headed "The Significance of the Canton Customs Issue" says:

"The Commissioner of Customs at Canton has definitely raised a vital issue with the Government at Canton by ordering the closing of the ports of Canton and Whampoa."

"He argued that seizure of goods was a violation of China's treaties. There can be no doubt that the Canton Government could, if it chose, prevent the interference of the strike committee with the shipping of Canton—certainly the Canton Government recently made many claims of its complete control not only of Canton, but of all eastern Kwangtung. The Commissioner is right in saying that the action of the strike committee in seizing goods so as to prevent their passing the Customs is a violation of treaties."

"If the Canton Government does not stop these seizures, therefore, it acknowledges its lack of authority or definitely repudiates the treaties."

"This is not the first time that the Canton authorities have had an argument with the Customs officials. Dr. Sun Yat-sen in December, 1923, threatened to take over the Customs administration and the revenue of Canton. The principal Powers promptly despatched warships and Sun gave up the plan."

"Recently, there has been much talk among those connected with the Canton administration about the advisability of taking over the Customs. The closing of the port by the Commissioner thus simply brings the issue into the open."

CANTON INDEPENDENCE.

"For some time the Canton Government has maintained the position that it is independent of Peking in domestic affairs. Canton leaders have also variously tried to get recognition from foreign Powers as an independent Government, but the Canton Government has hitherto accepted the Customs administration as controlled from Peking and has continued to deal with the representatives of the Powers in their capacities of Consuls and not as diplomatic agents accredited to an independent State."

"Much the same sort of domestic independence but with recognition of Chinese unity in dealing with foreign Powers has been maintained in other parts of China and this assumption that China is a unit in her foreign relations, in spite of domestic disagreements, has been the basis of the attitude of the Powers in their dealings with China."

CHANGE FORCED ON POWERS.

"If, however, the Canton Government announces by its actions that this assumption is no longer valid an entirely new attitude may be forced upon the Powers."

"There are plenty of foreigners who insist that the Powers should act on the realities of the situation, giving up the empty formality of dealing with the Government of Peking as though it were the Government of China when in fact its authority is limited almost to the walls of this city."

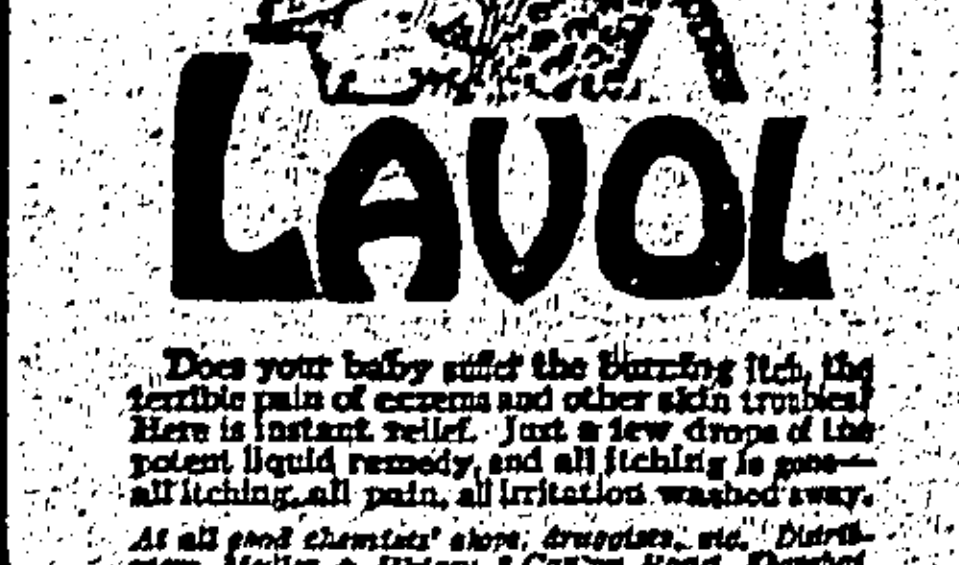

"The argument has been that only in this way could foreign rights and interests be properly protected. The Powers have wisely refused to listen to this advice, but if the Chinese authorities in various parts of China take the lead in refusing to assume China's unity in foreign relations it may easily prove impossible for the Powers any longer to maintain an attitude which the Chinese themselves repudiated nor would such a change in the basis of the attitude of the Powers, if forced by the actions of the Chinese, imply any giving up of their fundamental desire to maintain justice and fairness in their relations with China."

SPHERES OF INFLUENCE.

"It is difficult to foresee all the consequences of a final breakdown of any sort of even a nominal national Chinese Government in foreign as well as in domestic affairs, but one thing is sure, that such a breakdown and the consequent necessity that the Powers should deal individually with separate parts of China would enormously complicate the already over confused situation and also might easily make real again the danger of creation of spheres of influence and even of the partitioning of China."

"The Canton Government, therefore, in dealing with this Customs question, would do well to remember the gravity of the situation it may create by definitely severing the few remaining ties which keep China nominally united in her foreign relations."

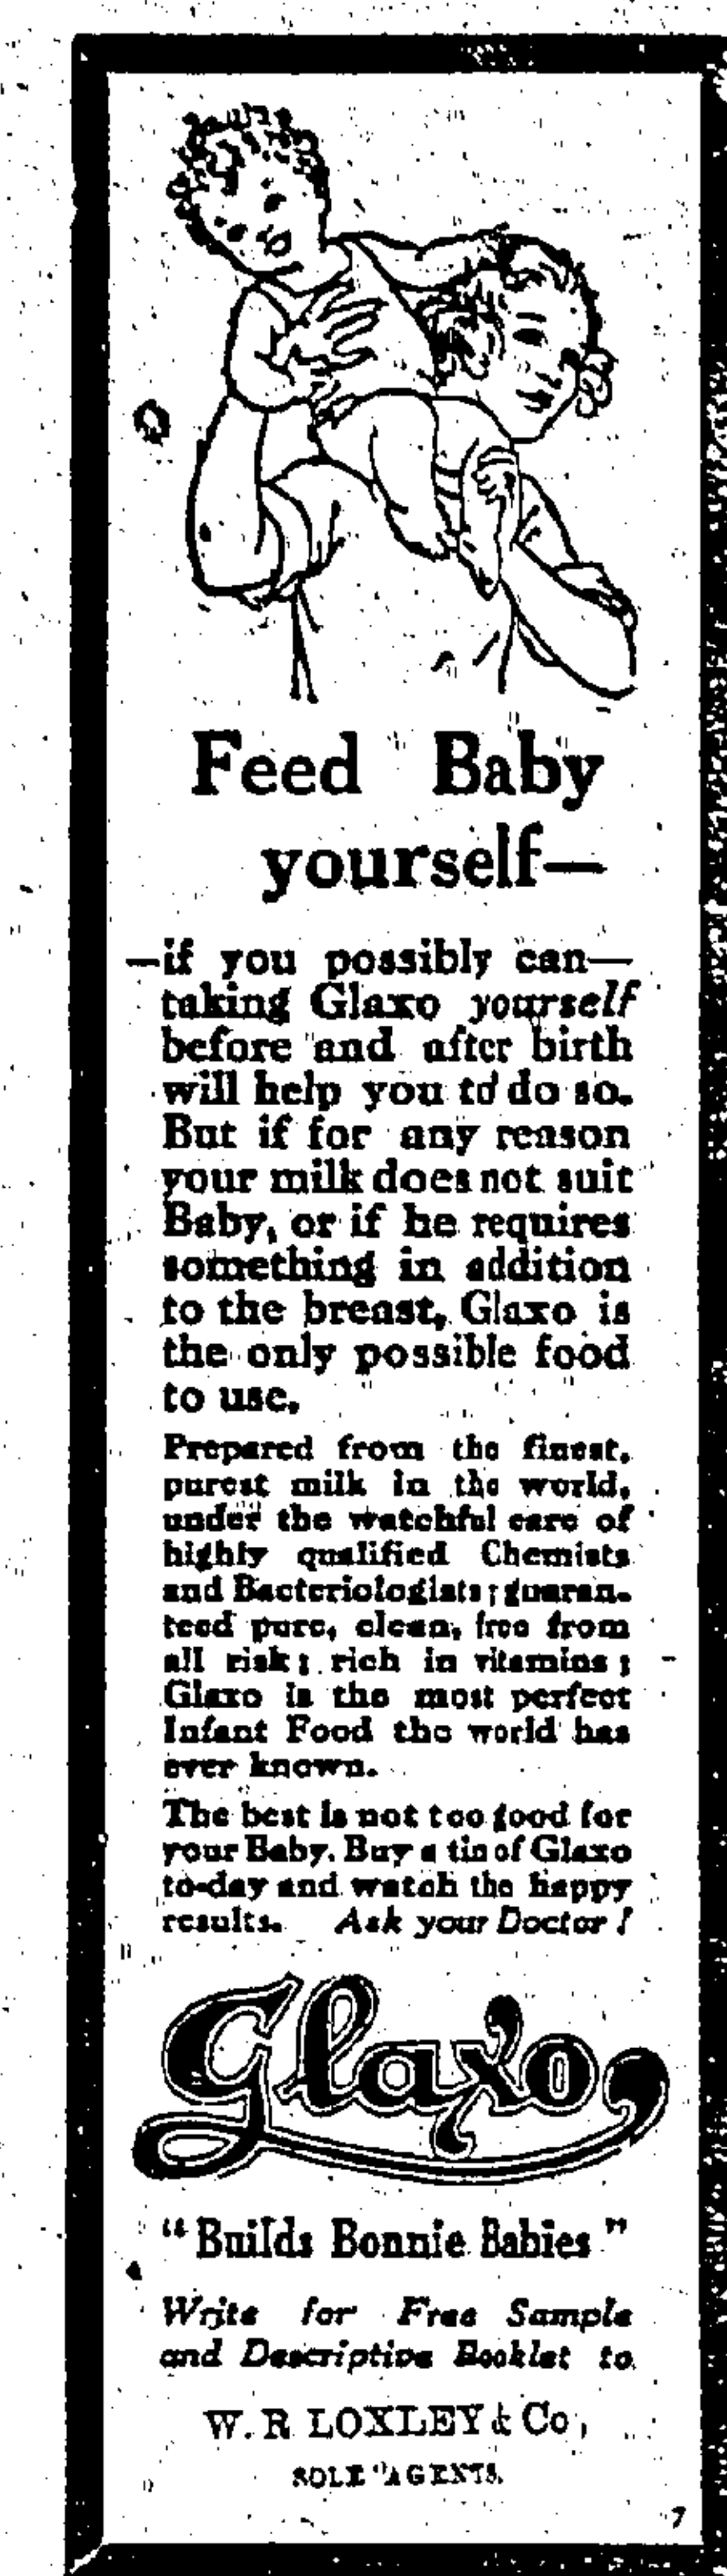

"It will be no light matter," the paper concludes, "if Canton takes the lead in breaking up China as a national unit among the Powers."—Reuter's Pacific Service.

IN SOVIET RUSSIA.

THE ANTI-CHRIST.

Mrs. Cecil Hanbury has been contributing to the London Daily Telegraph a series of articles on conditions in Soviet Russia. The following on the subject of the Education of the young is one of them:

Much is certainly being done for education in Russia to-day, and the movement is also spreading to the remote parts of the country. On one side of the educational methods there is great improvement—that is, on the side of physical development, country holidays, drill and training, and a certain amount of sport. All this is an entirely new idea in that slow moving land, but I feel very strongly that when that is said I have said all I can in praise of the Russian educational system. In my view the education of the young is the most ghastly side of Communist rule. The children are taught Communist propaganda and class hatred day in and day out. Envy, hatred, and malice have taken the place of the old doctrines of faith, hope, and charity. The little ones are brought up with one idea in their heads, that they must fight Western capitalism, which is depicted to their childish minds as a great cruel monster waiting somewhere outside Russia to eat them up.

Not only is no religion taught to them, but they are definitely instructed to scoff and sneer at the old beliefs of their fathers and mothers. They are taught that they owe neither allegiance nor obedience to their parents, that one of their duties is to spy on them and report their doings and sayings to their teachers. The homes to which parents are forced to send their boys and girls, often bitterly against their will, are for children, however small, up to 14 and 16 years of age. I heard terrible tales of the immorality that took place in these institutions. Out of one home, where there were 200 girls of under 16 years of age, no fewer than 150 were treated in hospital to prevent their becoming mothers. While I was in Leningrad there was in the paper a Russian appeal from the local authorities to the Government on the urgent necessity of a hospital for the treatment of venereal diseases of children under 15 years. What can the future bring? What will be the result on the next generation of this pernicious teaching? It is terrible to rob the young of the most precious of their possessions, a clean, happy youth and all the faith and beauty of childhood, and to give them instead the husks of sorrow, sin, and gross materialism. I was particularly struck with the faces of the "pioneers," of whom I saw many being drilled in the streets on my first Sunday in Russia, and the brutalised, boastful expressions on their poor little faces. I once had a long argument with a woman who was a Communist, although a foreigner. She was upholding the present system of education. She had one small boy, whom she thoroughly spoiled. Eventually I asked her, "Would you like your boy to go to this school?" "No," she immediately came the answer. "No; certainly not. I want my son to be taught religion and love of his home."

A BOLSHIEV PLAY.

While in Leningrad I went to the theatre one night to see a modern Bolshiev play written by Lunacharski, the Minister of Education. The theatre was full, and crowded with many young people. Without exaggeration I could not have imagined that such actions and such words written by a member of the Government could be produced on the stage of a so-called civilised country. The name of the play was "Poison." An Englishman said to me one night, "I have always heard of antichrist, and rather scoffed at it, but one cannot live in Russia to-day without realising that here is antichrist." The final battle has yet to come.

The Russian workers and peasants in the past may have been downtrodden, but never were they kept down to one dead level, so tyrannised over, so entirely deprived of all freedom as they are under the rule of the followers of Lenin. The Government lay stress quite openly on the abolition of family life and the breaking of ties. The "pioneers"—the children—are organised on the lines of our Boy Scouts and Girl Guides—but with what different ideals?—and are very strong in Russia. Schools have been organised in all the towns, where the little ones are instructed in physical culture, and their physique is excellent. Beyond this there is nothing further to say. "The League of Communist Youth," the Comsomol, leaves much to be desired, inasmuch as it is composed of boys and girls who have adopted the crudest and worst forms of Communist teaching. Marriage is now very easy and costs only one rouble at the Register Office, which may account for the fact that there are many more marriages contracted now than before the war. Divorce, however, is equally easy and inexpensive. All that is required is an agreement by both parties to the dispute, and if neither will accept the children the State arbitrates between them. Statistics have been published showing the alarming number of marriages which are dissolved at a year or under.

UNIVERSITY EDUCATION.

The education in the universities is sound, but it is always on the same line of incessant propaganda and class consciousness. Here again the intelligentsia have no standing. In 1924 the Government expelled 30,000 students, 8,000 from Leningrad alone, because they were not of proletarian origin. This, however, brought them into such discredit abroad, Italy in particular offering to take as many as possible at her own universities, that the Soviet Government are gradually reinstating the students in their old universities.

As I have said before, religion is no longer actively persecuted. The Government became alarmed at the outcry caused by their maltreatment of the clergy, but the decree of January 21st, 1921, which condemned as a crime public teaching of religion under the age of 18, is still in operation. Two questions put during the famous Cieplok trial, when

EMANCIPATION.

THE WIDENING FREEDOM OF WOMEN.

The complete emancipation of women is coming nearer. From every country of the civilised world comes news that it is being achieved, sometimes slowly and sometimes more rapidly. The recent protests of the Mohammedan rulers against the adoption of modern dress, and the rejection of the veil by Turkish and Egyptian women are, in themselves, proofs that women of these lands are insisting on freedom for their sex.

In Denmark, women will henceforth be permitted to keep their own nationality after marriage with a foreigner, as they have for some time been able to do in Sweden and Norway and the United States. A bill conferring the same boon on Frenchwomen is to come before the Senate in Paris this month.

In lands often considered barbarous the equality of the two sexes is absolute—or women rule! Explorers who spent last summer among the Esquimaux bring back reports which show that women govern these little northern people, who appear to be very happy under their sway.

In Tibet human beings take their place according to their talents and abilities. Women governors often manage such large territories as provinces. They collect taxes and form the legal tribunals. They may become priestesses, and so exercise not only temporal but spiritual power.

Among the Druses, women take their due part in administrative and executive work in peace time. During wars, they even fight. They are in charge of the ordinance and commissariat departments of their armies, and move among the troops encouraging them with war-like hymns and acquitting themselves with great valour.

But women were free for ages long past in many lands, only to slip back into the position of chattel slave. Their retention of power now will depend on how they use what they have won. Women must see that their discipline and self-control is at least as great as that possessed by men. They are usually quite willing to take responsibility, but they must learn to take the unpleasantness of public life as unflinchingly as they admittedly bear the blows of fate. They must fight with scrupulous regard for the rules of the game, remembering always that "chattel" originally meant "a little cat!"—H. N. K. in Manchester Guardian.

LAW AND THE PRESS.

In the case of Rex v. the Evening News, the Court of King's Bench in England decided a point of considerable importance to newspapers. The Lord Chief Justice, who was himself a journalist, said down that a newspaper report need not be accurate in all details but need only be substantially accurate. The judgment will also remove a misconception that Chamber matters could not be reported without the leave of the Judge. It also refers to flaring head lines and says that so long as these are taken from the report itself no objection can be taken.

The Government condemned to death many Roman Catholic priests, will serve to show the attitude of Communism to religion. Krenko, one of the leaders of the party who was in charge of this mock trial, is cross questioning a priest who was accused of teaching religion in his church to children under 18, told him it was against the Soviet law.

"There are other laws," replied the priest, "those of God and the Church, and to teach religion is divine."

"We care not about any other laws," retorted Krenko; "there is no law here but the Soviet law."

Again, when some Red soldiers entered a church and seized the sacred vessels, the priest knelt down to pray.

"That was a counter-revolutionary act," said Krenko.

FINDS IN CHINESE TURKESTAN. PREHISTORIC MONGOLIAN PEOPLE.

An interesting meeting of archaeologists has taken place at Stockholm in connection with Professor John Gunnar Andersson's discovery in Chinese Turkestan of the remains of a prehistoric Mongolian people dating 3000 B.C. Professor Andersson, who explored over 100 graves of these people, has brought back a large collection of inscriptions, jewelry, and pottery which revealed a civilization somewhat akin to that of Mesopotamia and Mediterranean Egypt of the same epoch.

On the invitation of the Crown Prince, the president of the Swedish Archaeological Society, on which behalf these explorations were undertaken by Professor Andersson, M. Pelliot, Professor of Central Asiatic Languages and Archaeology at the Sorbonne, Paris; Mr. R. L. Hobson, of the British Museum; Mr. Raphael, the owner of one of the largest private collections of Chinese antiquities in the world; Professor Karlgren, of the University of Gothenburg; and Dr. Sven Hedin have examined the collection.

In a lecture at the Stockholm University, Professor Pelliot emphasized their great importance as showing the intellectual connections of this Mongolian race of 5,000 years ago with the peoples of Central Asia, Southern Europe and Africa. Mr. Hobson, in conversation, confirmed this opinion as to the historical importance of the discoveries. Their artistic affinity to recent discoveries at Ur, in Mesopotamia, could of course only be scientifically established by a closer comparative study, but it seemed probable that it would.
